

THE FIRE IN THE NAVY YARD.
The loss of $250,000 in the fire in the Navy Yard, which was formerly used for holding navigation and ordnance stores, but which was fitted up with offices for the accommodation of the officers of the Equipment, Construction, and Board of Inspection departments when the reorganization of the departments took place a year ago, made a great stir in the yard, but the loss was much less than was at first anticipated. Admiral Gherardi, the commandant, thinks $250,000 will cover the damage on the building and $50,000 the loss of the articles destroyed. Much valuable property in the shape of models and nautical instruments, which was thought to have been burned, was saved. The fire was first discovered by Lieut. Taylor and Corporal Wool from the quarterdeck of the Atlanta. They saw flames on the top floor of the southeast corner of department No. 7, which is known as the armory and gun shop, and in which Chief of Construction Pook's office is. Corporal Wool hurried ashore, ran through the yard calling fire, and on reaching the main entrance at the foot of Third street rang the alarm bell. From the old tower a red smoke billowed out the blue jackets and marines on the feet at the yard and all the officers were in a greater commotion than they had been in a long time, and the three engines in the yard were quickly manned.

The fire had by this time extended nearly through the entire upper part of the building. Admiral Gherardi was at first inclined to close the gates across the Brooklyn street, which had responded to the alarm, but Lieut. Taylor, who was in charge until the arrival of Chief of Construction Pook, who, however, would need their assistance. Very soon, in response to a second alarm, Brooklyn engines, in addition to the three Government engines, were pouring streams on the burning building. The fire was now spreading to the main yard and the Wallabout basin, and bringing all the amount of water that could be obtained from the fire hydrants. In the annals of the paper, of the family story paper, where the world is told, in its own way, what a mass of preparation, careful, wise consideration, for the welfare of the nation, every one.

For the columns of the paper, of the family story paper, where the world is told, in its own way, what a mass of preparation, careful, wise consideration, for the welfare of the nation, every one.

There's America's great showman, P. T. Barnum, who has been for years, and his story for the boys, tales of love and adventure, tales from every clime and nation, from the court to the plantation, "Neath the sun."

Oh, how eager for the paper, for the family story paper, where the world is told, in its own way, what a mass of preparation, careful, wise consideration, for the welfare of the nation, every one.

To each interested reader, of the family story paper, where the world is told, in its own way, what a mass of preparation, careful, wise consideration, for the welfare of the nation, every one.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.
A Scurvy, Itching, Skin Disease with Badly Suffering Cured by CUTICURA Remedies.
If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of my scalp and I would have to wash my head with a brush and soap. I tried all kinds of remedies, but nothing would cure me. I was told that I had a "bad case of scurvy" and that I would never be cured. I was told that I had a "bad case of scurvy" and that I would never be cured. THE MAYOR CARRIES HIS POINTS.
Once in a While he Shows His Way in the Subway Board.

Mayor Howell took occasion to make an official record yesterday of the reformation of one of the Times' articles about him. First he got spread upon the record of the Board of Electrical Control the Times article accusing him of neglecting his duty, and then he secured the record of the fact that he had done his whole duty in communicating with the department of Public Works with reference to the subway poles and wires from the streets where the conduit is alleged to be ready. It turned out that there is no appropriation from which the Commissioner of Public Works can delay the expense of such removal.

MRS. SMITH RETURNS.
Her Husband Says He Won't Pay Her Bill and She Has Him Arrested.

Samuel Smith of 304 East Twenty-fourth street published yesterday a notice that he would not be responsible for any debts his wife might contract. He said that her unbecomable temper and false and slanderous reports had caused him to leave her. Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Smith had her husband arrested for abandonment. Mr. Smith's story, as he told it yesterday while working at the force in his blacksmith shop, was that for twenty-five years they had not lived happily together because of her temper and jealousy. She has accused him of adultery, and she is now trying to get him out of the house. Since 1875 she has repeatedly charged him with infidelity with a woman whom he has never seen since. She says she is now trying to get him out of the house. Since 1875 she has repeatedly charged him with infidelity with a woman whom he has never seen since.
